FOG ROLLS IN—A heavy fog approaches the Bay St. Louis shoreline from the Mississippi Sound Tuesday afternoon. While the fog can be picturesque, romantic and an essential ingredient in a good mystery story, the frequent weather phenomenon on the Gulf Coast at this time of year is also a hazard to motorists. The fog rolls in off the water unannounced just about any time of day or night, and drivers will be well advised to exercise caution and good judgement while negotiating through the near-zero visibility. The best option is to 'just say no' to the fog and stay home. (Echo staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Waveland awaiting confirmation of $300,000 grant

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Board of Aldermen is awaiting official approval of a $300,000 grant for new gas lines.

Mayor John Longo Jr. said he had already received a telephone call from the governor's office regarding the city's application.

Written confirmation of the grant, funded through the Governor's Office of State and Federal Programs, is expected "probably by the end of the week."

According to Longo, the city had to have $25,000 in leverage funds available to be able to qualify for the grant, but will not be required to spend those funds as matching money.

"It's a 100 percent grant from an 'urgent need' program," the mayor explained.

He said an estimated total of 8.5 miles of gas line would be constructed to replace existing inadequate or leaking lines.

In other business Tuesday, the aldermen:

—Agreed to merge two divisions of the city's utility system, the water department and the sewer department, under direction of Charlie Bourgeois;

—Authorized Longo to sign a notice to proceed on the extension of Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier;

—Discussed but took no action on a request asking that the city supply labor to install a sewage line that will be jointly paid for by three residential property owners;

—Approved an annual cathodic

Supervisors to name 45 roads

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors will begin work this week to name roads that presently have no designation.

Ronald Simms of South Mississippi Planning and Development District, who is working with Tax Collector and Assessor Edward Murtagh Jr. on preparations for implementation of the county's proposed enhanced 911 emergency telephone system, provided the board members Monday with maps of each beat showing unnamed roads.

In addition, Simms has compiled a list of all roads in the county, outside the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, to show the board what names have already been used.

In addition, the list shows that some road names have been duplicated and will therefore have to be changed.

Board Secretary Greg Pfeiffer, who is also serving as recording secretary for the county's E-911 commission, submitted a list of the roads that had been named during the past year.

Simms said 45 streets had been identified and separated by beats. The supervisors will check the maps to see if any of the 45 are on Pfeiffer's list as having already been named or if any unnamed streets are missing from the maps.

Simms asked for names to be submitted in about two weeks and the board set the project as the main item for an 11 a.m. Thursday work session.

He told the supervisors that some of the roads, although they have never been officially named, probably have common names used by the people who live on them.

He said the least controversial way to name the streets is to assign them numbers, then to ask the people who live there what they call each road and use those names unless they are duplications.

Simms added that resolving the problem of names already duplicated is a later step in establishing the E-911 system.

Once established, the E-911 system will allow emergency service agencies such as law enforcement, fire departments and ambulance services to have automatic access to computerized information regarding the origin of E-911 calls.

With the present 911 system, which does not cover the entire county, the caller must provide his loca-

Hancock Mardi Gras parades begin Sunday

By EDGAR PEREZ

The Krewe of Nereids Parade will launch the 1988 Mardi Gras street celebrations in Hancock County Sunday at 2 p.m.

The Nereids aggregation will roll from Choctaw Plaza on US-90 in Waveland, proceed east on the highway to Katies Kandy Shop near the Bay St. Louis-Waveland city limits, make a U-turn and move west on the highway to its disbanding point at Our Shopping Center, US-90 and Waveland Avenue.

On Saturday, Feb. 13, the Krewe of Diamondhead will present both land and sea parades at noon and later that afternoon the Krewe of Kids will parade in Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis.

The Pass Christian Carnival Association sponsors its annual parade of floats and trucks through the downtown area of the city and along US-90 beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 14, also St. Valentine's Day.

Mardi Gras Day, Tuesday, Feb. 16 the Krewe of Real People will depart from its traditional morning parade time and take to the streets of Bay St. Louis at 1 p.m. with parade units getting down to the theme 'All That Jazz.'

The Krewe of Triton which sponsored an afternoon parade along US-90 in Bay St. Louis and Waveland disbanded earlier this year, thus cancelling their annual parade and ball.

ACCIDENT—State Trooper David Kenny, second from left, and wrecker personnel prepare to turn a car right side up which ended on its side Monday morning following an accident. Kenny said Linda T. Ducote, 45, of Waveland apparently lost control in the curve on US-90 on Henderson Point, overturned and collided with a fence at the Village Condominiums. There were no other vehicles involved in the accident and Ducote was apparently not injured. Kenny said he did not expect to file charges. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Bay officials seeking new tax sources

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Bay St. Louis City officials are supporting legislation proposed by the Mississippi Municipal Government Association including a local option for additional sales tax, a state bond issue and revision of privilege tax laws.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor J. Franckiewicz reported the proposed legislation to the council Tuesday in its regular meeting.

First and foremost among the proposed legislation is the local option for sales tax, according to Franckiewicz.

This is a bill which would allow citizens locally to decided whether or not to have additionals sales tax and voters can dictate what the revenue generated from the sales tax is to used for.

"The way we see it, additional sales tax would be much more fair than property tax because property tax laws have so many built-in exemptions," he said.

"Currently the law is very unfair and most of the tax burden is shared by less than 50 percent of the property owners," Franckiewicz added.

According to Franckiewicz, as low as 40 percent of the property owners in Bay St. Louis is sharing the tax burden because of large amounts of untaxed land owned by churches, schools and senior citizens and the agriculture exemption.

Because of the agriculture exemption and unfair assessment ratios built in the law, you could pay 10 times as much as tax on a similiar pieces of property as someone who has the exemption," he said.

Franckiewicz said there are cases in Bay St. Louis in which property owners with 10 or more acres actually pay less tax than a property owner with a single building lot next door.

"The city loses more than $26,000 per year because of this one exemption," he added.

"The entire Mississippi property tax law is a joke. Even though the constitution says taxes should be fair the property tax places all the burden of taxation on a limited number of property owners," Franckiewicz said.

And because the way the tax law is written, the property tax base actually shrinks some years, he continued.

"Even when it grows, this is so slowly in Bay St. Louis, that property tax base growth cannot keep up with inflation," he said.

"This is why we have to find some other way of financing local government and school systems than property tax," Franckiewicz said.

"A one-half cent addition to the sales tax would provide enough money to completely wipe out the need for city property tax," Franckiewicz said.

Approximately $360,000 could be generated in a single year from a one-half cent sales tax addition and could fund the entire city general operating budget, he added.

Franckiewicz also reported the association is sponsoring a bill for the state to issue $100 million of infrastructure bonds which would be used to finance public improvments in municipalities such a new roads, water and sewer systems.

These funds would be made available to municipalities on a 50-50 basis.

"The reason the association is supporing this bill is because the state can raise money much easier than local governments and by raising this large pool of money the state's good credit can help local towns and cities," Franckiewicz said.

"We need this bill because the federal government has essentialy eliminated granf funding to local governments and and the same time have made it harder to raise money with strictly local financing," he continued.

Another bill being supported by the municipal governments association is to try and get an increase in the amount of the city's rebate from fire insurance premiums paid.

"Everyone who has fire insurance pays an extra tax as a part of their premium which is supposed to be used to help support fire departments and in turn would help keep fire insurance rates down," Franckiewicz said.

The problem is that the state collects this tax but only returns to the cities a very small portion of this money collected, he said.

"The state actually collects 15 times as much money as is returned to the cities and all the excess funds is put into the state treasury and the cities are left without the money we need to fund our fire departments," Franckiewicz added.

"We think it is only fair that this money which is paid by local citizens in fire insurance premiums to insure funding of fire departments which in turn helps keep fire insurance rates down should be returned to the cities so citizens get the benefits," he said.

In 1987 the city of Bay St. Louis collected $27,000 in insurance rebates. Operating budget for the city's fire department is 258,000.

Franckiewicz said the association is also seeking legislation to have the privledge tax laws revised.

"The current law has a different privilege tax fee for every different type of business and this is difficult

The incident is under investigation.

Correction

In a story regarding county road maintenance in Thursday's Sea Coast Echo, two incorrect statistics were included.

The correct number of motor graders needed to efficiently maintain Hancock County's unpaved roads is six, with four working in the south end of the county and two north of Interstate 10, Hancock County Maintenance Superintendent Bill Johnson said.

There are 153 miles of unpaved road.

Highway 603 hearing rescheduled for Feb. 25

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Mississippi State Highway Department has rescheduled a public hearing on the four-laning of Highway 603 for Thursday, Feb. 25, at 7 p.m. at Jourdan River Shores Community Center.

The hearing was rescheduled when the Hancock County Board of Supervisors found out that the original date was Feb. 16, which is Mardi Gras.

The board members were concerned that few people would attend a public hearing on Mardi Gras day, Board President Ronald Cuevas said during the meeting which included the schedule change request.

During the hearing, highway department personnel will discuss the reconstruction and realignment of the existing two lanes of Highway 603, also designated as Highway 43, from about a half-mile north of US-90 to Interstate 10, according to State Highway Department Director John R. Tabb.

The project, designated by the number 79-0067-01-002-10, also calls for construction of two additional lanes on the west side of the existing road.

In addition, location and design alternates, the highway department's Relocation Assistance Program and a tentative schedule of right-of-way acquisition will be discussed.

An environmental assessment for the project has already been completed and is available locally for public inspection at the board of supervisors and chancery clerk's offices in the Hancock County Courthouse and the office of Mayor John Longo Jr. at Waveland City Hall.

County school district to pay for college-credit courses for teachers aides, assistants

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Hancock County School Board Monday voted to pay for college-credit courses for all assistant teachers, Chapter I aides and special education aides.

Assistant Superintendent James Pair presented a program to the board on the project which would be directed by Pearl River Junior College.

Pair said he has been working with officials from PRJC for some time to set up this program which would enable district teacher aides and assitants to begin taking college courses at the schools.

Registration fees and tuition for the courses will be assumed by the county school system for the first nine quarter hours and teachers aides and assistants will be required to participate.

Classes will be conducted at the Hancock County Vocational and Technical Training Center or at one of the schools within the county school district.

These classes will be offered to approximately 50 teachers aides and assistants in the district.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph said these classes would have immediate benefit for the aides and assistants in the classrooms and also may influence some people to go on and get teaching degrees.

Also at the meeting the board approved a policy which will prohibit students who check out of school early from earning a perfect attendance record.

The board also approved a policy in which two early checkouts or two late check-ins by students will count as an absence.

Students are currently allowed 16 absences per years before having to make up class days on Saturdays or in the summer.

Pair said school administrators had reported high numbers of early checkouts and check-ins and this could affect the number of teaching units the district is credited with if a state department representative were to take county early in the morning or immediately prior to school dismissing.

Parents and students are to be notified of these policy changes which will go into effect sometime this month.

In other business the board:

—Approved the resignation of Elaine LaFontaine as assistant teacher at Gulfview Elementary.

—Approved the resignation of Cindy Ladner as assistant teacher at Hancock North Central Elementary.

—Approved a recommendation to employ Cheryl Necaise as teacher aide for the Continuum/TEAM program at Hancock North Central. Randolph explained this project is included in the employability skills program which is federally funded.

—Approved a recommendation to pay King Construction Company $27,852.75 as Payment No. 3 on the eight-classroom addition at Gulfview Elementary School.

—Approved a recommendation to pay $2,030 to Thompkins and Associates for services rendered for the eight-classroom addition at Gulfview Elementary School.

—Approved a recommendation to pay $670 to Fred Wagner as payment for final inspection services on the storm damaged roof repairs at Hancock North Central.

The board recessed the meeting until Feb. 15 at 5:30 p.m.

to administer and is very unfair," he said.

Some licenses cost as low as $10 and others as high as $2,500, Franckiewicz continued.

The municipal association also voted to support a bill which will allow Mississippi registered voters to voice their opinion in an election on the need for a new constitution.

Franckiewicz said he believes this bill is one of the most important issues because it will determine how the state will operate in the future.

"The current horse and buggy constitution is holding us back and until we change it we will always be fighting an uphill battle to get good government in Mississippi," he said.

Franckiewicz said this bill has passed in the House of Representatives and is being considered by the Senate.

The municipal association is also supporting a bill which allows for designation of urban enterprise zones to gives businesses located inside the zone tax advantages.

Quotables by Cuevas

It is good to receive a letter like the one we received on Tuesday from a resident praising one of our governmental agencies here in Hancock County.

The lady, and we can see why she would prefer to remain anonymous, really was giving two messages.

Her family consists of a father, mother and two young children with normal payments such as house and car notes, with the husband losing his job.

There being no place to turn, the family went to the Hancock County Welfare Department to secure Food Stamps.

The writer describes the Welfare Office building as being 'a condemned prison building,' and we have to agree.

On the brighter side, the Welfare Office people were described as being the warmest, most caring people the lady ever had the pleasure of meeting.

The writer continued by saying her family received 'first-class treatment' during a most desperate, uncertain time in their lives, and they were always treated with 'dignity and respect.'

Good news for the family, too, was the fact that the husband was able to secure a good job and they had to remain only a few months on Food Stamps.

It is good when we receive such a fine letter about the people working in a governmental agency in our county.

Our new Hancock County Board of Supervisors has implied they will be doing something about the out-dated facility now used by the Welfare Department.

Another facility for the Hancock County Welfare Department will not come too soon.

It is Mardi Gras time in Hancock County as the Krewe of Nereids is scheduled to roll with parade number 22 on Sunday.

The ladies have been working very hard to make this one of the best parades ever and are hoping for a very large spectator turnout.

The parade forms at Choctaw Plaza Shopping Center then travels East on US-90 to Katies Kandy Shop then West to Our Shopping Center in Waveland.

In addition to Nereids, the Krewe will be followed by the floats of Eros and others, including marching groups.

Remember the parade begins at 2 p.m. Sunday, so you need to get out early to get a good viewing spot.

We hope to see you at the parade on Sunday.

Don't forget the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Lunchtime Business Seminar on Fridays held at the Landmark on Main Street in Bay St. Louis.

The seminar begins at 11:30 a.m. with a dutch-treat lunch and Friday's topic will be Quality Circles-Employees Involvement in Decision Making.

Joyce Stabler, a consultant with Group Performance Processes, will conduct the workshop.

For further information call the chamber at 467-9048.

The Public Hearing on Highway 603-43 has been rescheduled for Thursday, Feb. 25, 7 p.m. with a location change, too.

The Mississippi State Highway Department Public Hearing will be held at the Jourdan River Shores Community Center, Highway 603.

The hearing was originally scheduled for Mardi Gras Day, which is a holiday for many folks on the Coast.

We are glad the date for the hearing has been changed, because we know there are many persons having major concerns about Highway 603 and are curious about the status of the promised improvements.

We hope every interested party will mark their calendar for Feb. 25.

The President's Column

Additional aid for the Nicaraguan Resistance

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

By Ronald Reagan

One of the great stories of this decade—a story that goes too often unremarked—involves the movement toward democracy in our own Western Hemisphere. Less than 50 percent of the people of Latin America lived in democracies when our Administration took office. Today that percentage is more than 90. In the words of President Sarney of Brazil, "Latin America's extraordinary effort to create a democratic order is the most stunning and moving political fact of recent years."

Yet in the face of this broad and sweeping movement toward human freedom, one country has gone in the opposite direction, away from freedom and toward oppression. That country is Nicaragua.

Since the communist Sandinista regime of Nicaragua took power in 1979, its political opposition has been subjected to constant harassment. Freedom of the press was replaced by state censorship. Communist control of the economy has produced hyperinflation and a standard of living that is now nothing short of desperate. Perhaps the most telling fact of all is this: Some 250,000 Nicaraguans—over 10 percent of the entire population—have fled the country.

It would be one thing if Nicaragua, bad as it is, were self-contained. Yet the actual case is much worse, for the communist regime has placed Nicaragua within the Soviet orbit, embarked upon a massive military buildup, and already begun to send arms and guerrillas into neighboring countries.

First El Salvador, then Guatemala, Honduras, Costa Rica—the communist Sandinistas have sought to extend violence throughout all of Central America. It could be only a matter of time before serious unrest and instability reached Mexico. Were that to happen, the decade of the 1990's could open with hundreds of thousands of refugees streaming toward our own southern borders.

Yet people in Central America have themselves moved to prevent this threat from becoming a reality.

First among these are the Nicaraguan freedom fighters. These brave men and women have given up ordinary life to endure the hardship of living in the countryside, virtually always on the move, to fight for freedom in their own country. There was a time when the freedom fighters, with few supplies, little medical support, and dwindling ammunition, were forced to retreat. But in recent months—in large measure because we in the United States have stood with them—the freedom fighters have begun to win major victories, placing intense pressure upon the communist Sandinista regime to reform.

Outside communist Nicaragua, the democratic leaders of neighboring Central American countries have worked together to develop a peace plan for the region. Among its provisions, the peace plan calls for all the countries of Central America, including Nicaragua, to respect civil liberties, including freedom of the press, and freedom to hold elections.

The communist regime in Nicaragua—under intense pressure from the freedom fighters—has agreed to participate in the regional peace process. So far, the measures the communists have taken have been extremely limited: the release of a small number of political prisoners, for example, and the lifting of censorship in a very few cases. Yet there is hope that—with the freedom fighters keeping up the pressure—the communists will observe still further provisions of the peace plan, permitting Nicaragua at least to inch toward the conditions of genuine democracy.

The United States has made every effort to promote a negotiated solution. Since 1981, we have met with the Sandinistas ourselves—bilaterally, multilaterally and in other diplomatic settings. Four special U.S. envoys have travelled to the region on at least 40 occasions.

Yet it remains vital for us to help the freedom fighters keep the communist Sandinistas under pressure.

Congress will vote on my request for additional aid for the Nicaraguan Resistance. Ninety percent of the $36 million package is for non-lethal support, such as food, clothing, medicine, and the means to deliver those items. Only $3.6 million is for ammunition, and its delivery would be suspended for at least a month to determine whether progress is being made toward a ceasefire.

I am hopeful that will occur, and the ammunition will not be required. However, if the Sandinistas fail to move forward on the path of peace and democracy, then I will certify to Congress that these supplies must be released. I will make that decision only after the most careful and thorough consultation with Congress and the four Central American democratic presidents. Those brave freedom fighters cannot be left unarmed against communist tyranny.

Mississippi Economic Council
The State Chamber of Commerce

The Mississippi Economic Council, the state's largest business organization, has recommended 60 constitutional amendments for introduction during the 1988 legislative session as a means of revising the state's constitution.

The amendments are the result of a year-long MEC study. Rep. Charlie Capps, who served as chairman of the House Constitution Committee last year, asked the Council in early 1987 to help identify amendments necessary for reform, after the House defeated a bill calling for a constitutional convention.

Larry Tyner, MEC legislative chairman, said in addition to identifying the necessary changes, the study concluded that the most effective means of revision would be through the amendement process.

"Once the amendments have passed through the legislative process, they will be submitted to the electorate for approval," he added.

The amendments will be introduced over the next several weeks by Capps and other House leaders.

Some of the proposed amendments would:

- ►grant more authority to the governor
- ►make state government more streamlined
- ►require the unit system for county government
- ►reform the judiciary system
- ►grant more authority to the Board of Trustees of Institutions of Higher Learning to implement necessary changes.

Gambling an immoral answer to Gulf Coast's economic woes

Dear Editor:

The only way that the floating casino proposal has been blown out of proportion is by those who would have us believe that gambling is a panacea for a supposedly sagging tourism industry.

I say "supposedly" since some of the same officials who make that claim are the same ones who are pushing for another hotel, a new multi-million dollar complex just a dice throw away from the docked casino.

Certainly, tourism may be hurting, but it's hurting along with many other businesses right now.

By accepting an oversimplified, unimaginative, and band-aid approach to the challenges which confront our area, the Tourism Commission and others charged with seeking tourism, industry, and jobs are being released from their responsibility.

Why should they be released from their responsibility because things are tough? Now is when we need innovation, not submission! The people of the Gulf Coast deserve better!

The reality is that a gambling policy has always been unable to stand on its own merit.

Proponents of legalized gambling regularly attempt to tie it to very worthy causes in order to justify legislative support.

A prime example of this tactic has been the attempt to promote gambling as the long sought after answer to better education and increased salaries for teachers.

This time around the "worthy cause" is Gulf Coast tourism and the "long sought after answer" is a floating casino.

It's really amazing that so many people have not yet realized that the casino boat has come to our state for profit, not for public service.

Legalized gambling is a predator stalking our state, and I am incensed by the arrogance of Mayor Blessey and other officials who conspired to bring the casino boat into the state knowing that it is against the law.

An investigation by the Attorney General's office into this matter is certainly warranted. Included in that investigation should be the questionable practice of using an all-expense paid junket to the Coast for legislators.

To Mr. Isiah Fredericks and others who say that you don't legislate morality, I say "baloney!" Why do they think we have laws against theft, fraud, rape, counterfeiting, conflict of interest, etc?

What Mr. Fredericks and others mean is that they don't want legislation which opposes their own moral standards.

Please understand that I am unwilling to roll over and play dead while you attempt to strike down present state law in order to legislate your own standard of morality.

I have as much right to to that, Mr. Fredericks, as you do, so please save the cliches.

Also, given the history of the involvement of gambling with organized crime, it has been disappointing and frustrating that law enforcement officals have not spoken out forcefully against this menace. I hope that they will do so very soon.

Hancock medical care delivery team lauded

The Sea Coast Echo

I would like to let the people of our area know just what a wonderful group of dedicated, truly professional people we have patching us up and saving our lives.

They are the entire staff and workers at Hancock Medical Center. Also working hand in hand with them are the EMTs of Mobil Medic Ambulance Service.

Since Jan. 5 when I suffered a heart attack in the middle of the night and then again the night of Jan. 10, all of the ambulance, HMC emergency room, ICU and surgery personnel have treated both my wife and me like we were almost part of their family.

Everyone at HMC from housekeeping, food service, maintenance, switchboard and office people, attending physicians and surgeons, ER, surgery, ICU, ward personnel, social services and respiratory and physical therapists, nurses and aides and the Mobil Medic crews who assisted both my wife and me—for the day after my wife brought me home she herself was involved in a very painful head-on collision—all are part of the team.

We were both treated like humans in need of professional help and not just patient numbers on a chart.

We people of the Bay-Waveland area are truly blessed for having such people we can turn to and depend on.

God's blessing to you all.

Police officer 'blasted' brings another side of the story

Dear Editor,

I am getting real tired of seeing police officers being 'blasted' in the Letters to the Editor. I demand equal time as there is always more than one side to a story. Your readers deserve to see another side.

As an example, let us focus for a moment on the latest 'blast' on Jan. 31. The headline read, 'Small child affected by officer's attitude.' Who really affected the attitude of that child? Was it the police officer who stopped the parent, or was it the parent who was stopped for the traffic violation?

Little Johnny, at five years of age, may have gotten a valuable lesson in trusting a police officer if that situation had been handled in the following manner. "Son, that officer stopped me because I may have violated the law. Even God got angry when His people disobeyed, just as I get angry when you disobey."

Let us not miss the forest for the trees here.

Sincerely,
Rebecca D. Stepro

White announces for congressional seat

Forrest and Perry County District Attorney Glenn White has announced his candidacy for Congress.

"One of the major issues of this campaign is electing someone who is historically able to capture seniority and become effective in Congress for Mississippi," White stated.

"Our next congressman will have to be very innovative in dealing with budget deficits, trade imbalances and economic issues and in being able to work with state leaders as a team to be able to accomplish goals," the democrat added.

"I have accomplished a number of things as district attorney and I feel I can do even more as a congressman."

"I will strive, working with state leaders, to insure that we maintain a strong national defense and a vital Coast economy."

"We need to look at the Gulf Coast economy as the economic pulse center of the entire state," he added.

White said his major concerns as a congressman will include getting on a viable congressional committee.

"The person who represents this district must work himself into a position of authority, such as a chairmanship, to assure Mississippi of representation in Congress."

White has served as district attorney for Forrest and Perry counties since 1983 and had previously served as an assistant district attorney since 1977.

He is a former Forrest County deputy sheriff and city prosecutor for the City of Petal.

He has helped to establish a rape crisis center in Hattiesburg, organized the Metro Narcotics Task Force for the 12th Judicial District and established a multi-agency child abuse task force in his district.

He also has established a self-help group for victims of violent crimes that is called Survivors Against Felons Early Release (SAFER) and a victim witness program.

White has been a strong advocate for victims' rights legislation since 1983.

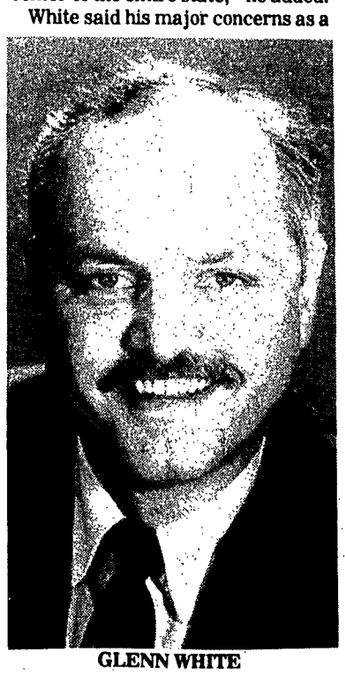

His other accomplishments include computerization of the 12th Judicial District's district attorney's office.

White, a graduate of Petal High School; received his B.A. in political science from University of Southern Mississippi and his juris doctorate from University of Mississippi.

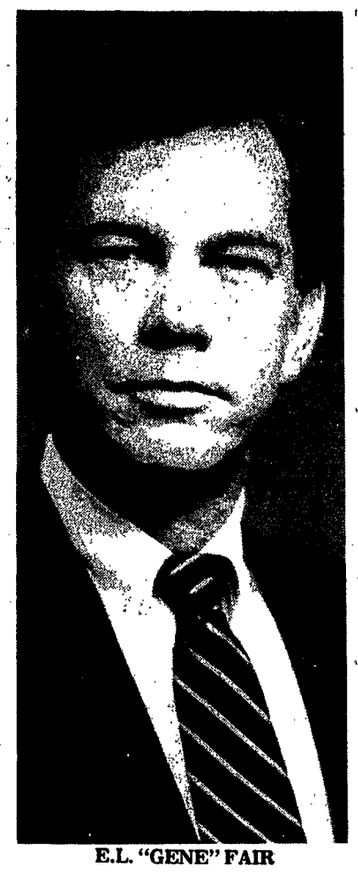

The candidate is a past president of Mississippi Prosecutors Association, a member of the board of sirectors of Mississippi Prosecutors Association for seven years and a Mississippi delegate to National District Attorney Association.

He has also been named Volunteer of the Year by the Hattiesburg Junior Auxiliary.

White is a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Hattiesburg, where he serves as lector. He is married to the former Robin Netherland and they have three children, Alexia, Andrew and Adriana.

ABORIGINES

In a beautiful and remote corner of northern Australia, a handful of people live out the twilight of their culture. The Aborigines called the Gagudju have lived in harmony with their environment for 40,000 years. Their lives are governed by ancient and mysterious myths which are just part of the longest unbroken culture in the history of mankind.

A new National Geographic Special on Mississippi ETV takes viewers to Australia's exotic Kakadu National Park to meet the Gagdju and exploe their myths when "Australia's Twilight of the Dreamtime" airs at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 10.

Fair seeks State Supreme Court nomination

Eugene L. "Gene" Fair, 41, Hattiesburg attorney, has launched his campaign for the Democratic nomination for judge of the Mississippi Supreme Court from the Southern Judicial District.

"To the best of my ability, with all my energy and using all of the experience acquired in some 20 years in the practice and study of law, both privately and public service, I will strive to be fair, faithful, impartial and diligent in making the tough decisions required of a judge of the Mississippi Supreme court," Fair said.

Fair, who currently serves as vice chairman of the Mississippi Ethics Commission, pointed out that in three years of service on the Commission. He participated in 307 of the 341 opinions rendered by the Commission since it was established.

"Such experience is an invaluable asset for a Supreme Court Judge, particularly in dealing with cases involving corruption or misconduct in public office, of which there have been all to many in recent years," Fair noted.

As a member of the Mississippi Supreme Court Committee on Technology in the Courts, Fair explained that he has already been deeply involved in bringing progressive change to aspects of the court system which cause case backlogs, and waste limited resources.

"I believe my experience would greatly enhance my ability to participate in resolving the paperwork log jam that is frustrating to both the Courts and to the parties involved."

"I sincerely believe that recent experience in front of the trial bench provides a Supreme Court Judge with a deper perspective and more realistic viewpoint in his review of cases under appeal," Fair said, citing his experience with cases ranging from trespass to murder, from civil suits to youth court complaints.

Fair opened his private law practice in Hattiesburg in 1983, after having practiced law with a small Hattiesburg firm since 1972. Prior to that, he served as Assistant Staff Judge Advocate to the Chief of Naval Air Advanced Training in Corpus Christi, Texas and as Base Legal Officer, Naval Air Station, Corpus Christi.

After receiving a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Mississippi in 1966, Fair attended the University of Mississippi School of Law and received a Juris Doctor degree in 1968.

Fair is married to the former Estella Galloway of Cleveland, Mississippi. She is employed by Forrest County Schools. They have two children, Melissa, 15, and Julia, 11, who attend Forrest County Public Schools.

A Book Review

Pass author explores Honduras in biography of her father

By KATY MCGUIRE CAIRE

Bertha Giani, well known Coast artist and musician, has turned to another of her myriad talents, writing, to produce a concise and colorful saga of her father's adventures in helping to create and build up a "banana empire" in Central America.

Titled "Homage To My Father: A Pioneer in Central America" (Carlton Press of New York, hardcover, $9.95, and available at most Coast bookstores) this slim volume is based upon "La Valle Della Speranza" by Italian author Angelo Colleoni.

In her book Giani delineates the adventures of her father, Pietro Bacuzzi, the central character, who left his Northern Italy home at the turn of the century to seek his fortune in New Orleans. Here he met up with two young Italian brothers, street vendors of bananas in New Orleans, who were also seeking their fortunes.

The enterprising trio's decision to procure a boat of their own and go right to the source in Honduras instead of waiting for bananas to reach New Orleans; and their struggles and successes hold the reader's attention throughout the book.

As skillful at painting word pictures as she is with the brush or sculptor's tools, Giani brings to life first street scenes and life in New Orleans of the 1900's and then depicts the jungles and rainforests and rivers of Central America with colorful clarity.

She also tells the "story within the story"—the love story of her father and his fiancee, who corresponded with each other all during the years he was busy accumulating the means to bring her from Italy to his adopted home, only to lose her to death shortly after she had given birth to their first child.

But this book is more than the story of one man and his times; more than the development of an economic dynasty. It is the record of a small group of brave and colorful people, and their struggles and triumphs against the wilds as they worked to bring progress and employment to the country and to its people, along with building up their banana plantations and their fortunes.

Giani, who was born in Spanish Honduras and educated in the United States and in Italy, draws generously upon her first-hand knowledge of Central America for her colorful descriptions.

She is an accomplished artist, well known especially for her water colors and Mayan-inspired bas reliefs.

She owns and manages "Le Belle Arti," a fine arts studio in Pass Christian, where she teaches piano and where her works are on display.

She has also had a number of one-man shows and participated in other shows.

An autograph party for Giani is slated for Saturday, Feb. 6, at 3 p.m. at the Book Boat, Scenic Drive and Market Street in Pass Christian.

Bay St. Louis awards contract for comprehensive gas system study

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Accepting a low bid, the Bay St. Louis City Council voted to award a contract to MCS Services Inc. of Mobile, Ala. for comprehensive study of the gas system.

In spite of nearly 25 miles of replaced gas lines, there continues to be a big discrepancy in the amount of gas which the city is charged for compared to the amount of gas charged to customers, according to Norbert Redmond, superintendent of the Department of Public Works.

This difference in the metered amount the city pays for and the metered amount consumed by customers is called unaccounted for gas and city officials okayed the comprehensive study to try and determine the reason for the discrepancy.

Redmond said in efforts to reduce the amount of unaccounted for gas, the city has replaced 25 miles of main transmission lines at a cost of $600,000, placed 10 miles of gas lines under cathodic protection to prevent deterioration and repaired numerous leaks.

But the amount of unaccounted for gas remains high and this is costing the city thousands of dollars each month, Redmond said.

MCS Services bid $18,790 on the package which includes labor, equipment, tools and supplies for all work necessary to check every aspect of the gas delivery, measurement and billing system.

The only other bidder on the entire project was Union Company of Jackson which bid $38,400 for the project.

Two companies submitted a bid for a leak survey only.

Work included in the contract includes:

—In-place testing of approximately 24 large commercial meters throughout the city and making minor adjustments as needed to bring meter accuracy into the correct proof range.

—In-place testing, calibration and service maintenance of all units on large commercial meters which changes the reading from high to low pressure so they may be noted.

—A walking leakage survey of the entire gas system by a technician. Redmond estimates this will take 30 days.

—A detailed review of all meter reading in city meter books to determine is there are any conditions which require on-site investigation for overloaded meters, possible gas theft, etc.

—A review and analysis of a 12 months of gas purchases and sales and an in-depth report on findings with recommendations for improvements.

—Testing of United Gas Pipeline meters and indexes which measure gas coming into the Bay St. Louis system.

The contract also includes monitoring by the company of the system for an additional period of 12 months as the city continues to reduce unaccounted for gas to a level of two percent or less.

Also in the meeting Carroll Street resident Marilyn Scafidi asked the city council to do whatever possible to get school buses traveling on Carroll Avenue slowed down.

"I have complained about how fast these school buses are going but there doesn't seem to be anything done to slow them down," she said.

Scafidi also presented the board a petition with more than 40 signatures by Carroll Avenue area residents seeking assistance with this problem.

"We, the taxpayers, are hereby requesting that our city officials become involved in a serious situation involving our city school buses.

"The bus drives are oblivious to the 25 miles per hour speed limit on our streets, therefore driving at excessive speeds.

"Since going through the proper channels has produced unsatisfactory, if not negligent results, we are asking you to solve this dangerous problem immediately," the petition states.

Bay Mayor Victor J. Franckiewicz reported to the council following recent complaints, police had set up radars on the street but had not caught any drivers driving at speeds in excess of the speeding limit.

The council passed a resolution to forward the petition to the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Board of Trustees.

Councilman John Wilkerson also requested continued radar checks be made in the area.

The council also voted to conduct its next regular meeting Feb. 17 at 7 p.m.

tion before he can receive assistance. If the caller is unable to speak, unable to complete the call or the call is disconnected, the emergency service he is contacting may not be able to find him.

Simms told the board at an earlier meeting that all addresses in the county, along with telephone numbers for residential, business and even pay telephones, would be put into a computerized information bank.

Either a central dispatcher or an emergency service office with a computer terminal known as a public safety answering point would have access to the information when receiving a 911 call.

Callers will still dial the same 911 number to make a call to the system, which is expected to have answering points at Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Bay St. Louis Police Department and Waveland Police Department.

Dispatchers at those points will contact the appropriate agency, such as a fire department or ambulance service, through automatic equipment that is part of the E-911 system.

South Central Bell is handling the equipment aspect of the project and started its first monthly charges for the system Monday, Simms said.

The charges will be added to the telephone bills of all South Central Bell customers in Hancock County. Customers on the Picayune telephone exchange will have their calls routed through the Picayune Police Department.

The board agreed to the project last year after a referendum in the June primary elections indicated that the public wanted the system. The addressing work being done in preparation for the E-911 system coincides with a legislative requirement passed last year that mandates all counties to name all roads and number structures, with provisions for the addition of new structure numbers and road names as future growth warrants.

In other business Monday, the board:

—Heard a report from Murtagh on tax collections for this year, which so far have totalled $2,145,000 for the county and more than $1 million for the city of Bay St. Louis, with about $500 new applicants for Homestead Exemption;

—Approved a request from Hancock County Superintendent of Education Terrell Randolph for county assistance with a drainage problem at Gulfview Elementary School, provided the work to be done meets the standards of the State Aid Road Program;

—Approved resignation of Paula Necaise from the Hancock County Planning Commission and named Werlin Ladner to succeed her;

—Approved sharing the expenses of a trip to Washington, D.C., for Board Members Ronald Cuevas, Roger Dale Ladner and Michael Ladner and Port and Harbor Executive Director Harold Olsen with Gulf Regional Planning Commission while the four attend a conference and meet with Mississippi's congressional delegation;

—Discussed but delayed action on a request from Paul Barkmeier for a board representative to fill a seat on the Hancock County Animal Commission left vacant by resignation of Sam Perniciaro; and —Turned a request from Fenton Volunteer Fire Department President Lester Curvin for information on how to set up a fire protection district over to Board Attorney Gerald Gex.

Thursday's work session will not be an officially convened meeting and is for discussion purposes only. Any official action will have to be delayed until the next regular board meeting, which is set for 9 a.m. Feb. 12 in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

Butterfish project provides new opportunity for Coast fishermen

BY DENA BISNETTE

Fishermen along the Mississippi Gulf Coast may get their next economic opportunity through a pilot project designed to harvest butterfish and export them to Japanese markets.

The Mississippi Technology Transfer Office at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories can help them obtain funding needed to outfit their boats to catch butterfish.

The technology transfer office, Mississippi Department of Energy and Transportation and National Marine Fisheries Service are working together on the project.

The project will consist of retrofitting two Mississippi vessels to catch the deepwater fish, Technology Transfer Office Director Richard Miller stated.

He said butterfish is a resource currently not being used much in the U.S., although there is a small market in the Northeast, and that primary markets are in Japan, where he said the white-fleshed fish is "very popular right now."

He called the fish "a kind of Japanese fast food."

The butterfish industry would provide shrimpers who have properly retrofitted boats an opportunity to work outside of shrimp seasons and could triple their income, he added.

"We will be taking a product with a value, when landed on our shores, of about $1 a pound and sending it to a market with 10 times that value," Miller stated at a recent meeting at the technology transfer office.

The meeting also included Linda Rosa, Jackson County Director of Economic Development; David Beale, Sea Grant Advisory Service; Dr. P.T. Bankston, Mississippi Department of Energy and Transportation; Dr. Rolf Juhl, National Marine Fisheries Service; and Bob Barlow, technology transfer center's remote sensing division.

The remote sensing division's role, according to Barlow, will be to assist fishermen in locating large schools of butterfish in the Gulf of Mexico.

Using two test boats, the preliminary part of the project has provided information on where butterfish school, how large an average fish grows, maturity rates, eating habits, what fish can be caught with butterfish and other data, Juhl said.

A National Marine Fisheries Service vessel was catching 9,000 pounds of medium-sized fish an hour just two days before the meeting, he added.

The fisheries service will train fishermen in use of equipment for catching butterfish.

The Department of Energy and Transportation has determined the amount of fuel efficiency boats show in fishing for shrimp and in fishing for butterfish.

The department will supply grant funding of up to $25,000 for retrofitting eligible boats of at least 72 feet long with 450 horsepower or equivalent as well as ability to trawl in deep water 50 to 100 miles offshore.

Minimum hold capacity required is 60 net tons, in addition to accomodations for a crew of at least four and a slush ice or refridgerated seawater system for storing and processing fish.

In addition, the fisherman applying for the funds must have plans for off-loading, handling, processing and marketing fish suitable for the Japanese market and must agree to export a significant portion of each catch.

Because the project is targeting Mississippi fishermen, applicants must be Mississippi residents or have made a significant investment in the Mississippi fishing industry. Miller said interested applicants can contact his office at 688-3144 for assistance in completing grant applications.

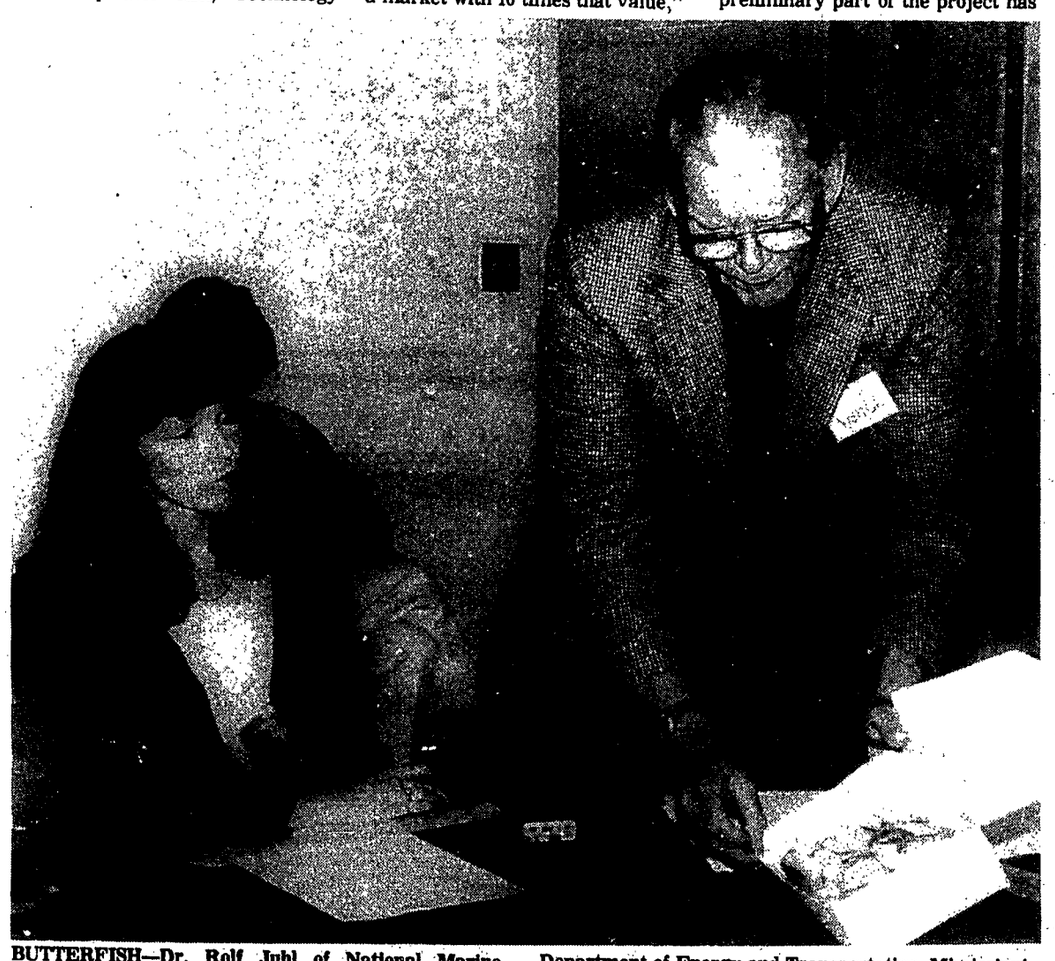

In addition, a proposal conference will be conducted for interested fishermen Friday at 2p.m. at the National Marine Fisheries Service Laboratory in Pascagoula.

Rosa, who has been dealing with the fishing industry through her position as economic development director, said she hopes the project will carry over into creation of support industries, such as packing and net-making. She explained that most of the existing fishing industry deals with fish such as menhaden, which are used for pet foods and other uses rather than human consumption.

Although Mississippi fishermen are targeted, Miller called the project "a Coastwide opportunity" and six commercial vessels from New England will also be involved.

In addition, Miller emphasized that the project is not one that will take a long time to realize a payback. Boats with retrofitting for most purposes take three to four year to pay back costs but the butterfish payback period is closer to one year.

He also said that the project will not take years or months of study before it can be started and can instead start "next week if we want to," adding that the first commercial Mississippi boats are expected to start work in April.

The conference addressed a joint project involving Mississippi Department of Energy and Transportation, Mississippi Technology Transfer Office and the fisheries services that will provide eligible fishermen with assistance in outfitting their boats to catch butterfish. Spinks, a sophomore at Coast Episcopal High School, was one of only three 9th and 10th grade students whose science papers were accepted by the academy following preliminary judging from among the 80 papers submitted statewide.

The preliminary judging was conducted at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg under the direction of Professor Donald R. Cotten, head of the junior academy and co-director of the competition.

Spinks, a member of Mu Alpha Theta, the National Honor Society and the Society of Distinguished American High School Students, is vice-president of the sophomore class and art editor for the CEHS annual and Literary magazine, The Coast Quarterly.

Actress to conduct Destin retreat

Actress and author Jeanette Clift George will be the keynote speaker for the fourth annual Gulf Coast Women's Retreat, scheduled Feb. 19-21 at Sandestin, Fla.

The theme for the retreat is also the title of one of Mrs. George's books, "Some Run with Feet of Clay." She is also the author of "Travel Tips from a Reluctant Traveler," and she is a playwright.

Mrs. George made her film debut in "The Hiding Place," in which she portrayed Corrie Ten Boom, a Dutch woman who saved the lives of many Jews in her native Holland during the Nazi occupation. She was nominated for a Golden Globe Award and several other honors for her film work.

Known throughout the country as a speaker and Bible teacher, Mrs. George lives in Houston, Texas, where she is artistic director for a Christian drama company that offers Bible-based plays for churches, schools and theaters.

The Friday evening through Sunday morning program also will include music and a mini-concert and interest groups on subjects such as making the teen years smoother, raising children in Christ, keeping love alive, growing spiritually, organizing your household, and understanding your personality and others better.

This retreat is the fourth coordinated for women in southern Alabama and Mississippi and northwest Florida by a steering committee of four women from Monroeville, Ala.: Carolyn Holley, Betty Miller, Faye Estes and Ernestine Hardin.

Mrs. Holley says the number attending has increased each year and some had to be turned away the last two years, so early registration is needed.

The deadline is Feb. 10 for the $39 registration fee, which includes four meals. Room reservation deposits for the Sandestin Beach Resort should be sent with retreat registration.

For more information or a registration brochure, contact Mrs. Ernestine Hardin, 303 Sunset Dr., Monroeville, Ala. 36460, or call (205) 743-3787, 575-3642 or 743-4370.

Man has sought out the wild mushroom over the years, a pleasant but perilous pastime unless you know the lethal from the luscious, and the delicious from the deadly!

So, you'd probably best do as I do, and confine your mushroom hunting to the marketplace. And be thankful that the mushroom is now so widely cultivated and readily available that you needn't go mushroom hungry for fresh or bottled or canned or dried mushrooms.

The mushroom, that umbrella-shaped fungus, has pleased tastebuds since Biblical times. The early Greeks and Romans firmly believed that this fungus or vegetable or whatever had powers which gave soldiers strength in battle, and the Romans called the mushroom "Food of Gods," served only on the most festive occasions.

Mushrooms are so versatile. There's fresh spinach and mushroom salad, for starters—and stuffed mushrooms for the appetizer tray or even as a main course dish.

And, mushrooms, whole or sliced, briefly sauteed in butter and splashes of sherry or white wine, are delicious on their own, or added to other dishes.

In fact, I always have to purchase twice the quantity I'll need for any dish, because by the time I've sauteed them, I've snitched so many that there aren't usually too many left.

Carol Surgi, just about the best "mushroom-stuffer" around, doesn't mind giving her recipes out, as some cooks do with their "specials," but it's rather difficult to do so, because Carol cooks much as I do, varying her recipes from time to time, improvising at times, using up what's on hand, and so on. So, I watched while she cooked, and we ended up with:

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

18 to 24 mushroom caps, approximately 1 lb.

1 to 1½ cups cooked chopped chicken (Carol uses two chicken leg quarters)

3 to 4 green onions, chopped fine

2 toes garlic, chopped

Breadcrumbs (seasoned)

Butter

Olive oil, for drizzling atop mushrooms.

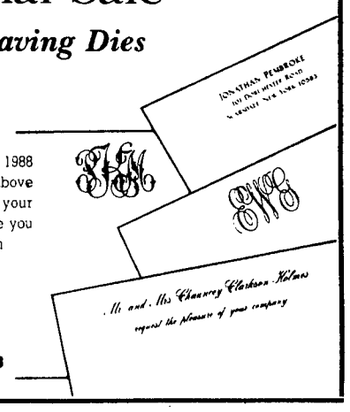

First, of course, wipe the mushrooms with a damp towel; if very sandy, wash briefly and dry—and be careful with the water, as mushrooms are like sponges and quickly soak up water, so then you'll have to cook out the water and the flavor along with it, so beware!

Cut off the stems and reserve, chopping some to mix with the chopped chicken. Saute stems and chicken along with the chopped onions and garlic very briefly in a bit of butter, seasoning with pepper and salt. Add the breadcrumbs, just enough to hold everything together, and fill the mushroom caps.

Sprinkle more crumbs atop, then drizzle oil atop each cap, place on baking sheet, pat some butter around the caps, and cook at 350 degrees for approximately 15 minutes. You may substitute chopped ham or shrimp or oysters or crab for the chicken, or just additional chopped stems and bread crumbs. Whatever—enjoy!

SSC succumbs to accuracy at foul line

The SSC Rockachaws battled Long Beach in an overtime game in Bay St. Louis on Friday night.

The Rocks saw an 11-point halftime lead drop through the second half to enable the overtime.

Foul shooting was a factor as Long Beach won the battle at the foul line.

The Bearcats took a 70-67 lead late in the fourth period, but the Rocks put it in to overtime with a basket by Ya-Sin Shabazz and a free-throw by Shannon Garrett.

In overtime, the Bearcat free-throws made the difference in their 79-77 overtime win.

"Foul shooting definitely hurt us tonight. We could not buy one and Long Beach could not miss," said SSC Coach Chuck Genin.

The Rocks were led by Shabazz with 24 points, Garrett with 17 points, Brian Alexander with 16 points and Joe Lee with 10 points.

Long Beach was led by Chris Bartman's 28 points.

In the JV contest, the Rocks hiked their record to 13-0 by defeating Long Beach 54-40.

Bassin' with the pros

Bass conservation

by Trey Foerster

This year's pro circuit has underlined the fact that bass are getting tougher to catch. More and more avid anglers are going toward lighter lines and lures in order to catch their limits. Is it because the bass population is in decline? Ken Cook, Evinrude Outboard Pro Staff member, recently back from a Pro Bass tournament in Las Vegas, Nev., took a few moments to reflect about the state of bass conservation today.

"I would say from traveling around the country, we've probably seen the peak of bass and fish populations," Cook began.

"Twenty years ago, we had large numbers of new reservoirs, which are unnaturally fertile for the first two years. After 10 or 15 years, they become normal. So most of our reservoirs have gone through that stage of high fish populations. Now, more of them are becoming older reservoirs, so we're beyond peek populations of bass in most casses. And, we're running out of places to build new reservoirs."

"Now we've got a situation where we've got to put more emphasis on fish management through our governmental fisheries, agencies and biologists. We have to demand that they put some attention on game fish. We need to look at managing the resources that we have," Cook stresses.

What about the future of bass sportsmanship? I that endangered?

"I think we're gettin better and better at conserving bass populations," Cook believes. "I think that there are probably going to be as many bass in an average lake—if there is an average lake—10 years from now as there are today. We are becoming more aware of catch-and-release, and we're achieving some success in managing bass populations through lake limits and other management techniques.

"The more fishing pressure you put on bass populations, the more that are caught and released, the more difficult they will be to catch. That's going to put more emphasis on our continuing ability to become better sportsmen. We're going to have to develop new techniques to catch bass that have been caught before."

This observation bodes well for organizations like the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society (BASS). Cook believes that this organization is in the forefront along with organizations like Pro Bass and the Professional Bass Anglers Association (PBAA).

"The PBAA is an organization that's going to become more and more active in that field in the next few years because they're not affiliated with a particular money-making organization. It's just an association of bass fishermen and professionals, and I think therein lies the potential for a combined voice for bass management."

Check your propeller! For top performance and reliability, the Johnson and Evinrude service experts at OMC recommend all boaters to carefully check their propeller for bent blades and "dings." Even minor damage to a propeller can result in damage to gearcase bearings. Use a file to remove small burrs and nicks from aluminum or stainless steel propellers, OMC advises. If a blade is bent, take the prop to your marine dealer or good prop shop. Minor damage to propellers can often be repaired for less than replacement costs. If you run your bass boat in areas with stumps, logs or shallow areas, consider installing a stainless steel propeller in place of a standard aluminum prop. Stainles props, like OMC's SST II and SST Raker, are stronger than aluminum props and in some cases provide added performance. When you remove the propeller for inspection, be sure to check the prop shaft for monofilament fishing line, which can get wrapped around the shaft and damage the prop shaft seal, according to OMC.

Gulf/Caribbean Fisheries Expo nears sellout

NEW ORLEANS—As the first Gulf/Caribbean Fisheries Expo draws near, exhibition space is rapidly disappearing with over 96 percent exhibitor booths reserved.

Scheduled for March 3-5, at The Rivergate in New Orleans, the trade show will emphasize the fisheries of the Gulf of Mexico and Caribbean. Advance registrations have been pouring in from commercial fishermen and related industry representatives, already assuring the show of success.

Sponsored by H.L. Peace Expositions, Inc., who also publish The Fish Boat and The Work Boat magazines, the show was created by popular demand.

H.L. Peace Expositions has been sponsoring the International Work Boat Show for ten years and has tried to include programs for the area's commercial fisheries.

But with each successive show, it became increasingly clear of the necessity for a show tailored exclusively to the commercial fisheries of the Gulf and Caribean. The Gulf/Caribbean Fisheries Expo has been designed exclusively to meet those needs.

The trade show will feature a wide variety of items, including engines, electronics, rigging, deck equipment, refrigeration, etc.—even boats. All the diplays will have representatives ready to field any questions from show-goers.

In addition to the exhibits, a comprehensive complement of seminars has been scheduled to deal with the many issues facing the Gulf/Caribbean commerical fishing market.

USM names new tennis coach

HATTIESBURG—Teddy Viator, a former standout at LSU and most recently an assistant coach with the Bengals, has been named interim tennis coach at the University of Southern Mississippi where he will direct both men's and women's programs and also will have additional duties in USM's School of Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department managing USM's tennis facilities.

He assumes the post immediately and will become USM's first-ever full time tennis coach.

Viator, a Jeanerette, La., native, is the only LSU player ever to win 20 matches per season and he ranks as the Tigers' second-winningest player ever. He served as a student assistant at LSU in 1984-85, and as a full time assistant the past two seasons with responsibilities for recruiting, conducting practice, maintaining a strength and conditioning program and working one-on-one with team members. LSU at one point last season was ranked fifth nationally with four players ranked among the top 50 singles players in the country.

He will assume responsibilities previously held by Larry Harrington and Laurie White. White recently resigned her duties with the USM women's program to work at a Gulf Coast tennis club, and Doc Harrington now will devote full time to his duties as all sports trainer.

Harrington last season completed his 27th year as men's tennis coach and did not suffer a losing season in that time, He also administered two of the more popular tennis tournaments in the southeast, the Big Gold and the USM Invitational, and has been recognized for his efforts by being named to USM's Sports Hall of Fame

Remember when folks used to have their shoes custom-made?

Back in the horse and buggy days, when folks needed to update their transportation, likely as not they'd turn to their local newspaper to see what was selling in the Classifieds. Nowadays, folks pretty much do the same thing. When they're looking for a good deal on a good set of wheels the Classifieds are their best source of used car bargains around. And if they've still a mind to get their shoes custom-made, chances are the Classifieds have the listings of blacksmiths for hire, horses for sale, saddles to buy and lots of other sales and services that are off the beaten track.

After all these years the Classifieds still deliver

Crime expert declares USM campus 'safe'

HATTIESBURG— Mississippi students and parents looking for a safe college environment in an era of increasing campus crime might consider staying in the state, a crime expert said Tuesday.

Dr. Michael Clay Smith, an assistant professor of criminal justice at the University of Southern Mississippi and author of a recently released book, "Coping with Crime on Campus," told a capacity crowd of about 50 at a recent Brown Bag Seminar in USM's McCain Library that the campus crime rate across the United States, already higher than the off-campus rate, is rising.

"If I'm a parent worried about my kid...how do I avoid this problem?" Smith asked, preparing to answer himself.

—"First, you want...a campus that's a good distance away from an urban area.

—"You want a campus that's not surrounded by a (socially and economically) decaying area.

—"Thirdly, you want a campus populated by a student body that is drawn from a rural area," Smith asserted. "Incidentally, you may have noticed that I just described USM," he added, drawing smiles from an audience made up largely of university employees, many of whom probably were parents.

Smith's lecture coincidentally came two days before he was scheduled to appear on NBC's 'Donahue' show as a member of a panel discussing campus crime, a subject that suddenly seems to be a hot topic in the media judging by network television coverage, a cover story in USA Today and recent rapes on two other Mississippi university campuses.

During the three years Smith researched and wrote his book, he said people to whom he mentioned it seemed unaware that crime had become a problem on college campuses.

"I'd inevitably get this blank stare," he said. "Then they'd decide that I was kidding them. They'd say..., 'a whole book about parking tickets?'"

However, Smith, who for 20 years served as counsel with West Virginia's attorney general's office working with higher education, maintains that campus crime nowadays involves an array of much more serious offenses than parking tickets. The most common crime on campus is theft, he said, because students keep a lot of 'stealable' items in their rooms.

Reports in recent years reveal hundreds of university employees—including some president—indicted in white-collar campus crimes, hundreds of students victimized in theft, rapes and other sexual crimes; grades illegally changed; and computer time stolen, among other crimes, Smith said.

What's more, existing statistics come from only the 20 percent of the nation's campuses that voluntarily report crimes. Many of the crimes on these campuses aren't reported to campus authorities chose not to report them to statistical record-keepers.

"Many colleges and universities that do report tend to understate things, because they want to present a positive image," Smith asserted.

However, Smith warned college administrators not to hide crimes from the appropriate authorities.

"Normally, citizens don't have to report crimes that they know about," he said, "But if you know about a crime and do anything to cover it up, you become criminally liable."

Smith predicted that campus crime will continue to rise, but that administrators also will find better ways to curb it.

"I think colleges will have to address the crime problem" he said.

Hancock's FFA students repair school furniture

Future Farmers of America members in the Hancock North Central Vocational Agriculture program are taking pride in improving their school.

These students have an ongoing project to refurbish school desks, chairs and tables.

Already more than 60 desks have been repaired along with 20 chairs and three tables.

The Vo-Ag students undertook this project following instruction in welding, gas cutting and cold metal.

FFA Instructor Gwen Necaise said she was very proud of the enthusiasm and hard work by the students in repairing the desks which may have otherwise been discarded.

Future school improvement projects include building individual compartments for the HNC elementary classrooms and assisting the Drama Club in technical work on the stage for their upcoming production.

Also in a wood-cutting class, Vo-ag students have cut out wood shapes for elementary special education students' projects.

Ocean Springs to defend Mathcounts crown

On Saturday, Feb. 13, local junior high school mathletes will juggle logarithms, hurdle equations and rebound logic problems during the fifth annual Mathcounts competition to be held at the USM Gulf Park Campus beginning at 8:30 a.m.

Ocean Springs, last year's champion, will be battling against 21 other local schools.

In a twelve-hour period of time, for how many minutes is the sum of the digits on electronic digital clock greater than 15?

More than 600 junior high students will be answering math stumpers like this in seven regional competitions throughout Mississippi.

These students have already participated in school competitions and have won out over 8,000 students in 150 schools.

Winners of the regional competitions progress to the State competition in March and the top math stars in Mississippi will compete against stars from all fifty states in Wahsington, D.C. in May.

Schools participating in the local competition include Pearl River, Mercy Cross, Our lady Academy, Bay St. Louis, St. Martin, St. Stanislaus, North Gulfport, Poplarville, Ocean Springs, Michel Middle, Vancleave middle, Long Beach Middle, Picayune, Pass Christian, Live Oak Academy, Agricola, Rocky Creek, Coast Episcopal, d'Iberville Middle, and Stone.

Mathcounts is administered in the state by the Mississippi Engineering Society.

Sponsors of the program, in addition to the Society, include the Gannett Foundation, the Mississippi Power Foundation, Bryan Foods, Chevron, First Mississippi Corporation, Mississippi Chemical Corporation, Electric Power Associations of Mississippi, APAC - Mississippi, Layne Central Company, Mississippi Concrete Industries Association, Mississippi Valley Gas Company, and Rutledge and Associates.

For the solution to the math stumper given above or any questions you have about Mathcounts, contact either the local coordinator, Brian Seal, P.E., P.O. Box 4079, Gulfport, MS 39501, (865-5956) or the state coordinator, Samuel L. DeLeuw, P.E. at the Department of Civil Engineering, The University of Mississippi, University, MS 38677, (232-5368).

HNC science teacher to serve on staff team

Suzette Burton, who teaches chemistry, biology and general science at Hancock North Central, will serve in a Statewide Biology Testing Review Committee.

Twenty-one members from across the state of Mississippi have been chosen. However, only two from the coast area have been asked to serve.

Burton, one of the two selected from the Coast area has AAA certification in all subjects she teaches.

The purpose of the committee is to prepare a biology test to be given to all biology students beginning in 1988.

Other science areas will begin testing in subsequent years.

The basic objectives required in the subject by the State of Mississippi in the subject of Biology will be tested.

Mastery of all these objectives is required for a Carnegie unit in Biology.

This group will test to be certain students have mastered the objectives for future education.

Phillips claims dual accreditation

Phillips Junior College of the Mississippi Gulf Coast, a two-year private junior college of business and technology on Highway 90 in Gulfport, has received full accreditation as a junior college by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS), a regional accrediting agency headquartered in Atlanta, GA.

At the same time, Phillips Junior College has also announced that its full accreditation as a junior college has been renewed by the Accrediting Commission of the Association of Independent Colleges and Schools (AICS), a national accrediting agency headquartered in Washington, D.C. Phillips has been fully accredited by AICS since 1976.

Both acceditation actions were approved in 1987 and are presently in effect.

"We are pleased to have our AICS accreditation renewed," said Dennis Dollar, president of the college.

"This national accreditation is an important part of our efforst towards providing first-rate education to all of our students."

"Adding the prestigious regional accreditation from SACS enhances our accreditation position in an even stronger way," said Dollar. "These two levels of accreditation are indicators of a high standard of educational quality which will benefit our students greatly as they enter the job market or transfer to other institutions after graduation."

Phillips Junior College is one of only two institutions in Mississippi to have been awarded full accreditation as a junior college by both AICS and SACS.

"Count On Domino's" math program begins third year

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—The "Count on Domino's" math program will once again be challenging thousands of students across the nation to use their ingenuity and at the same time develop math skills.

Domino's Pizza, Inc., together with the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics (NCTM), developed the "Count on Domino's" program for K-12 classrooms in 1985.

"Count on Domino's" is a supplemental mathematics program designed to encourage students to create, demonstrate and solve mathematics and math-related activities, such as games and problems, by using sets of double-six dominoes.

NCTM President John A. Dossey said the program is unique because it promotes private-public sector partnerships. "Last year, more than 5,700 teachers and thousands of students all across the country participated in 'Count on Domino's'," said Dossey. "We're encouraged by the level of interest educators have in the program, and the support from Domino's Pizza, Inc. for this educational partnership."

The "Count on Domino's" program is available to all elementary school and secondary school math teachers from Jan. 4 - March 15, 1988. Teachers who want to participate should mail their name, the school's name, address and telephone number to: "Count on Domino's", Post Office Box 1990, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48106-1990, or call 1-800-777-7450 between 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. EST on weekdays after Jan. 4, 1988. A program kit will be mailed to the school.

To encourage program participation. Domino's Pizza and the NCTM invite teachers to submit an activity for judging in a national competition. The entry must be postmarked and mailed to the NCTM by April 15, 1988. National winning mathematics activities will be selected in each of four grade categories. K-3, 4-6, 7-9, 10-12 to receive a $1,000 prize award.

After submitting an entry to the national competition, participating students will receive participation certificates and student packages at an awards presentation hosted by Domino's Pizza. Each school will be awarded a one-year NCTM institutional membership.

"The 'Count on Domino's' program is a fine method for us to form a partnership with education," said Thomas S. Monaghan, president of Domino's Pizza, Inc. "We are excited by the program's success and think students enjoy 'Count on Domino's' because it lets them be imaginative and creative with mathematics."

The National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, based in Reston, Va., is a 64,000-member professional organization dedicated to the improvement of the teaching and learning of mathematics.

Domino's Pizza, Inc., based in Ann Arbor, Mich., is the world's largest pizza delivery company with 4,200 stores in all 50 states, Australia, Canada, Costa Rica, Honduras, Hong Kong, Japan, Portugal, the United Kingom and West Germany.

DAVID STOCKSTILL

Hancock North Central teacher attends Jackson workshop

David Stockstill of Picayune attended the annual Mississippi History Workshop in the Old Capital Museum in Jackson. The workshop was hosted by the Staff Department of Archives and History.

The 1987-1988 lectures dealt with Mississippi's Colonial heritage from Britain, France and Spain.

Featured speaker was Sir Jack Holmes, recently knighted by the government of Spain for his research and translations of documents concerning the Colonial Era.

All such workshops are extremely important to teachers of Mississippi History and Mississippi State and Local Government. Such add to a teacher's ability to interest his/her students in our unique past.

Birthday wishes to HNC teachers

All Hancock North Central teachers are rememberd on their birthday by Sondra Adams' Occupational Child Care classes.

Each teacher is presented with her favorite cookie which will have a candle burning on the top of it.

The students from the class who present the cookie will sing, 'Happy Birthday.'

A more permanent treat to each teacher is a banner with her name on it.

The class meets for two hours each day under the federally funded Program for Occupational Education.

This is open to all 10th to 12th grade students, not just those who follow occupational goals, but college-bound students, too.

The members of the class work two days per week with Kindergarten classes to give them intern experience.
